WOBBLY A. A. U. FINDS TROUBLE A-PLENTY AT PRESENT TIME

Latest Move of Amateur Governing Body Brings On War With Military League Men That Promises to Be Far Reaching.

HE prospects of the American team that goes to London in the spring will be very turbances in the A. A. U. continue. Ever since a large number of the athletes on the Athens Olympic team protested against the reappointment of Matthew Halpin as manager it has been "bubble, bubble-toil and trouble" in Amateur Athletic Union circles. Possibly the Halpin matter-the public protest among the athletes of the metro-Stan district over the absolute ignoring of their protests started the trouble

Ine latest disturbance will soon be the most serious of the lot. A few days ago the news was made public that the Military Athletic League was about to break with the A. A. U. Now, before the break is arranged by the latter is well padded with professional boxing clubs and skating rinks.

With all of this trouble at home and abroad on its hands, it seems queer that the A. A. U. should be looking for more. With scores of the best amust the two M. A. L. athletes formerly suspended by the A. A. U. The M. A. L. stollets on the tricky intricately sort of a team that should represent about the present and the trouble in getting up the sort of a team that should represent the present and the ceaseless squabbling among our athletic rulers?

Too Many Rules on Book.

Mr. Sullivan announced a little while

Dut it is said that the United States have will step in and Mr. James E. Sulfivan and his associates will not be able they do everything within their organization. There is a legal restriction that prohibits the discharge of any employee who leaves his position when called out for duty with his regiment in the National Guard, and provides a heavy pentalty for infringements. This same regulative some people sit up and take notice. That was in line with the usual threatening official attitude.

What the A. A. U. needs is not MORE rules, but FEWER RULES. A good clean amateur definition backed by a few short, concise regulations would be far better than the confusing mass of stuff that now clutters the rule books. Why, not even the A. A. U. officials themselves can agree on the intent of many of the printed restrictions.

There was more trouble. William Stark President of the C. A. A. U., gave out a public statement in which he said: TEvery entry from Canada must be Enally passed upon and forwarded by the Central Canadian Olympic Commit-

BY VINCENT TREANOR.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10. T is rather early in the season to kick on form reversals, bad starts and inferior jockeyship, but when Mars Cassidy left Clements, one of a field of four, standing at the post in the fifth race yesterday he certainly gave ample cause for an awful howl. Whether Cassidy, Jockey McCarthy or the horse himself was to blame mattered little with the spectators. The majority of them had played Clements with confidence on his impressive performance in his previous race, and they felt they had been victimized, and gave voice to all kinds of nasty criticisms of all
